Surprise Puts foe In Panic

Attack on Stepping Stone To Tokyo Made in Bright Northern Moonlight

ABOARD A U. S. DESTROYER IN THE NORTH PACIFIC, Feb. 4.—(Delayed) —(P)—United States warships bombarded Japan at home for the first time today and caught the enemy by surprise.

A bombardment lasting about 20 minutes battered the harbor and land installations of Kurabu Point on the southern tip of Paramushiro Island.

(Paramushiro Island, frequently bombed by American planes flying from the Aleutians, is 1280 miles from Tokyo, but is geographically a part of Japan proper.)

Enemy gunners, either surprised or attempting to put out star shells which preceded the heavy blasting, fired into the air when the attack first started. Then, giving evidence of becoming more rattled, they fired along their own beaches and at the Pacific ocean and Sea of Okhotsk.

No ship of the attacking force, which steamed under bright moonlight within five miles of the shore batteries, was hit.

The task force was commanded by Rear Admiral Wilder D. Baker operating under Vice Admiral Frank Jack Fletcher, commander of the North Pacific fleet. Both messaged ships and crews following the attack congratulating them on being the first to bombard Japanese home territory.

The Army also was represented aboard Admiral Baker's flagship by Major General Davenport Johnson, commander 11th Air Force, and Brig. Gen. E. D. Post, chief of staff to Lt. Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner, commander of the Alaskan department. The presence of General Post came while troops of the Alaskan department engaged in assault maneuvers which possibly will be aimed at Paramushiro.

The wild nature of the Japanese gunnery indicated they feared an invasion was already underway. Tracer bullets from some of their guns spurted along the shoreline, apparently aimed at shadows or imaginary landing barges.

This destroyer on which I rode as the only war correspondent accompanying the task force was skippered by Commander Harry Smith, former flag lieutenant to Admiral Fletcher in the Coral Sea fighting and at the battle of Midway.

Two weeks ago I became the first war correspondent over Japanese home soil when I made

ATTACK ON JAPS IN CAROLINES MAY BE NEXT ON YANK SCHEDULE AS MARSHALLS MOP-UP NEAR END

Bases on Captured Kwajalein Atoll Being Put in Shape by Seabees for Bombing and Blockading Other Pacific Bases of Enemy—New Guinea Defenders Being Battered for Knockout Blow

By MORRIE LANDSBERG

(By the Associated Press)

American control of Kwajalein Atoll brought the promise today of intensified efforts to bomb and blockade the Japanese on other bases in the invaded Marshall Islands and to extend the Pacific drive to the powerful Caroline group.

Only mopping-up of Japanese stragglers on a few coral cays apparently remained to achieve full conquest of the first pre-war

Nipponese territory taken by the Allies. Construction crews already were turning Kwajalein into an American sea and air stronghold exactly a week after the initial landings, January 31.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced at Pearl Harbor yesterday that occupation of the atoll, with its cluster of 32 principal islets, excellent anchorage and at least two airfields, "is very nearly complete."

Kwajalein Island, termed the administrative heart of the Marshalls, fell Friday afternoon, 78 hours after landings by the Seventh Army division. The seaplane base of Ebeye to the north was occupied three hours earlier. Capture of Guguewe, Euge and Eller islands, together with several undefended dots of land, spread American control to 21 of the chief islands. Units of the Fourth Marine division previously secured the atoll's northern sector with seizure of Roi and other islets.

The Tokyo radio declared last night "intense fighting is still in progress on Kwajalein Island." Its broadcasters gave American troops a needed laugh with the "news"

SOLDIER WINS $80 ON SHOVELING BET

Buddies Collect $800 When 19 Tons of Sand Moved

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—(P)—Pvt. Roy L. Webb of near West Liberty (Logan County) won $80 and the Sand Shoveling championship of Ohio's famed 37th division recently, but buddies who backed him picked up $800 in side bets.

Webb tossed 19 tons of sand in three hours and 56 minutes after betting he could do the job in four hours flat.

The feat, performed as an Army Medical company of the division was preparing to receive casualties on Bougainville Island, followed an argument over how long it would take to dig an oversized fox-hole needed by the unit. The hole was eight feet wide, 10 feet long and four feet deep.

Webb, whose experience at his farm home made him a veteran in the use of shovels and pitchforks, stopped several times during the grind for three-minute rest periods and poured cool water on aching wrists.

RESERVE COAL DWINDLES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—(P)—Reserve stocks of bituminous coal constitute less than a 30-day national supply, Interior Secretary Ickes reported today with a warning that further economies are necessary to avert a crisis.

Change Is Recommended For Highway Department

CLEVELAND, Feb. 7.—(P)—The state committee of the Cleveland Citizens League today offered the Ohio Highway Recodification commission a plan which it contends would take politics out of the State Highway system.

Replying to a request of the commission, appointed to revise and recodify state and local highway laws, the committee recommended a part-time bi-partisan state highway commission of five members, appointed by the governor for overlapping five-year terms and with authority to appoint the chief highway engineer.

The group also recommended appointment of county highway engineers by county commissioners instead of his election as at present.

The committee claimed five major advantages of such a plan:

UNION LEADER STILL DEFIANT

Refuses To Discuss Strike With Labor Board

CLEVELAND, Feb. 7.—(P)—The executive board of the Independent Mechanics Educational Society of America scheduled a strategy meeting here today as the work stoppage of approximately 25,000 members in some 44 Michigan and Ohio war plants entered its fourth day.

MESA President George White and Secretary Matthew Smith said they were ignoring a National War Labor Board order to appear in Washington today for a hearing to determine whether sanctions should be applied against unionists participating in the walkout. Sanctions might include reclassification of strikers under Selective Service or with-

ANOTHER CARRIER LAUNCHED BY NAVY

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., Feb. 7.—(P)—Bearing a name made famous in the Revolutionary war, the big aircraft carrier Ticonderoga splashed into the James River today from her building ways at the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock plant.

Sixth carrier of the Essex class launched here since the United States entered the war, the Ticonderoga was christened by Stephanie Sarah Pell, of Pelham Manor, N. Y., daughter of T. Pell, of the U. S. State Department, and granddaughter of Stephen H. P. Pell, through whose efforts Fort Ticonderoga was restored to its original status.

ISTANBUL, Feb. 7.—(P)—A high official in the German embassy here, who has been under investigation by the Gestapo, has disappeared and the Germans apparently fear he has gone over to the Allies.

COLUMBUS, Feb. 7.—(P)—Ohio's winter drought—next most severe in weather bureau history—should end soon, but that is not a forecast it will, meteorologist George W. Mindling said today.

JAP HUNT WANTED BY 'DEAD END KIDS' OF MARINES ON MAKIN

(The following story was written by Sergeant William E. Perry, of Youngstown, Ohio, a Marine Corps Combat Correspondent, and distributed by the Associated Press.)

SOMEWHERE IN THE PACIFIC—(Delayed)—The "Dead End Kids" of the United States Marine Corps are spoiling for more Jap-hunting after coming through their first expedition on Makin without a scratch.

A hard-hitting, specially-trained outfit, the "Kids" earned their name many months ago when training on the west coast. Welded together by specialized schooling on how to kill Japs efficiently and silently with bare hands, knives or any weapon at hand, they became inseparable in camp and on liberty, and other Marines tagged them the "Dead End Kids."

GARDEN SEED ON SALE MONTHS AHEAD OF TIME

COLUMBUS, Feb. 7.—(P)—Garden seed was on sale today in Ohio two months ahead of schedule, because early-season demands of victory gardeners and seed specialists said there would be enough to "go around."

The only scarcity is in cabbage and tomato seed, said C. C. Finch, Ohio Farm Bureau horticulturist, who reported plenty of other seed and garden fertilizer available.

GIRL BURNS TO DEATH

Yanks Laugh As They Face Death--- Then Charge And Crack Nazi Line

By REYNOLDS PACKARD (Representing the combined American Press distributed the Associated Press.)

WITH THE FIFTH ARMY ON THE ANZIO BEACHHEAD FRONT, Feb. 6.—(Delayed)—After four attempts had failed, the Americans got to laughing on the fifth charge and cracked through the barbed wire entanglements—chuckling as they risked their lives and sprayed death with tommyguns.

When it was over, 34 Germans had been killed.

Lt. Edward Kennedy of Holyoke, Mass., one of the officers in run much longer than is normally expected for winter months," he declared after statewide reports showed the six-month average ended Jan. 31 totaled only 9.7 inches of rainfall compared with a normal of 17.27 inches.

"I would not make a prediction but all past conditions point to its termination soon," he added.

Only in the six months, October, 1930, through March 1931, when precipitation totaled 9.31 inches has drought been greater than this winter.

Last month was the driest January on record—ninety-seven hundredths of an inch. Many Ohio farmers have been hauling water for several weeks. The wheat crop, planted when the drought was starting, was slow in germinating and has produced little growth during the winter. The same is true of winter rye and barley, crop experts said.

Dr. H. C. Ramsower, Ohio State University's agricultural extension director, said the state picture was not encouraging, but agriculturists were afraid to predict either success or failure of 1943 plantings.

Dr. Wilbur E. Stout, state geologist, said normal rains were needed to bring up the subterranean water supply, and it might be three to eight months before wells and streams would be refilled after such rainfall.

The Ohio Water Supply Board reported the state water table—level of underground water—dropped another 3.17 feet last year.

MEAT FOR CIVILIANS TO BE ABOUT SAME

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—(P)—Present prospects are that civilians will receive about the same quantity of meat in 1944 as they had in 1943.

Things will probably shape up that way, the Department of Agriculture said today, "if production forecasts are borne out and non-civilian requirements do not materially change."

Production is expected to increase about 8 percent over last year, but this will for the most part be absorbed by military demands.

WOUNDED YANKS BEING DRAFTED

Ballot Battle Goes On and Liquor Hunt Starts

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—(P)—Men wounded in action, discharged and then fully recovered, are being drafted again, it was disclosed today, and the War Department took cognizance of the situation by ordering the veterans to be given their old ranks.

Some sergeants and corporals, it was said, had found themselves back in uniform as privates, after reasons for their original discharge no longer existed.

Selective Service regulations permit re-drafting of veterans who again qualify. Some men wounded at Attu and at Faid Pass in the Tunisian campaign have been recalled by the local boards, the Army said.

Lowering of physical standards also has prompted the War Department to order commanding officers to exhaust all possibilities before discharging enlisted men. Thousands have been released, it

POLISH HOSTAGES EXECUTED BY NAZIS

LONDON, Feb. 7.—(P)—The Polish Telegraph Agency said today 177 hostages were shot by the Germans in Warsaw the last two weeks in October.

Details of the shootings have just come from Poland, the Agency of the Polish Government-in-exile said, listing Miss Janina Askenazy, daughter of Dr. Simeon Askenazy, Polish historian and delegate to the League of Nations, as among those executed.

"The hostages were shot on Warsaw's main streets in bunches of 10, in full view of the rest of the populace," the Agency said. "The shootings were ordered by Hans Frank, Governor General of the occupied country, as reprisals for guerrilla sabotage."

FIERCE FIGHTING IS STILL RAGING INSIDE CASSINO

Reds Surge On In Two Major Assaults—Another Batch Of Germans Trapped

By RICHARD McMURRAY

By The Associated Press

American troops in the Rome beachhead have mended a break in their lines three miles west of Cassino, repulsed a powerful German attack and restored their original positions, Algiers dispatches said today.

On the main front 60 miles away, other Americans made new advances north and west of Cassino, battling to within a few hundred yards of the famous mountainside monastery, Cassino itself was virtually encircled, but the Germans held tenaciously to the stronghold in house to house fighting.

The Nazis rolled up elements of a fourth division on the periphery of the Rome beachhead in their supreme effort to drive the Allies into the sea. The attack around Cassino was mounted with infantry, tanks and artillery. Lesser assaults were made at other points along the front, generally eight miles deep and 14 miles long. Heavy artillery scattered a forming German attack against the British north of Carroccio (Aprilia).

The British Eighth Army on the Adriatic advanced to capture Pizzoferrato and Monterotondo and Allied planes struck Orte north of Rome and Frascati near the capital. Ten German planes were destroyed. The Allied lost 13.

Reds Trap More Nazis

The Russians trapped five more German divisions on the Dnieper by isolating Nikolopol and captured Apostolovo. This cut Nikolopol's last railroad leading to Krivoy Rog. The ten divisions previously encircled near Cherkassy were compressed further by Red advances. Altogether, about 175,000 of Hitler's finest troops were sealed for destruction near the Dnieper.

The Russian army is less than 45 miles at some points from the lines where Adolf Hitler launched his invasion of the Soviet Union, and all along the 1,200-mile eastern front the German army is suffering some of the war's worst defeats, field dispatches said today.

Gaining the upper hand along the lower reaches of the Dnieper River with advances up to 40 miles through a 100-mile-wide gap, Gen. Diodon Y. Malinovsky's Third Ukrainian Army ruthlessly went about the job of destroying five trapped German divisions (normally 75,000 men) in the Nikolopol sector. Meanwhile, 150 miles to the north, more Nazi corpses littered the thawing

MORE STATE PARKS PLANNED BY BRICKER

COLUMBUS, Feb. 7.—(P)—Gov. John W. Bricker said today he might ask the legislature to make an outright appropriation for purchase of state parks, a function denied the Post-war Planning Commission by a supreme court decision.

Bricker said he thought it might be well to grant the money—he did not say how much—to the Conservation Department or the Department of Public Works, subject to approval of the emergency board.

An act setting up the Post-war Planning Commission gave it authority to spend up to $400,000 in acquisition of parks, but the supreme court held last week the commission had no right to exercise such a function.

No decision will be reached, Bricker told his press conference; until after he confers with legislative leaders.

HIGHWAY SAFETY PLEA EXPECTED TO GET RESULTS

Union Township Farm Bureau Also Emphasized Stand For Soldier Voting

A prediction that Public Utilities Commission of Ohio investigators will "report favorably" soon, recommending erection of safety devices on hazardous railroad crossings in the county was made at the February meeting of the Union Township Farm Bureau Council. The council was active in bringing the commission's attention to the crossings. First action was taken in December.

Mrs. Walter Thompson is the council's representative to the County Educational Committee of the Farm Bureau. She was named at the February meeting held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Beryl Cavine.

The council is in favor of soldier voting, it was brought out in the discussions led by Lowell Kaufman. Income tax was another subject discussed.

Mrs. Clarence Campbell and Mrs. Edgar Coil assisted Mr. and Mrs. Cavine in serving refreshments after the meeting. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Sollars.

ATTACK ON CAROLINES BELIEVED NEXT AS YANKS MOP UP MARSHALL ISLETS

Saturday night that Roi and adjoining Namur were still held by the Emperor's forces.

As Navy Seabees began restoration of the bomb-torn, three-strip airfield on Roi Island and army engineers tackled a similar job on Kwajalein Island, Rear Admiral John S. Hoover, commander of American air forces in the central Pacific, declared there would be no delay in establishing new facilities for land-based planes.

He told Malcolm R. Johnson, representing the combined American Press, that remaining Japanese garrisons on other atolls of the 30-odd Marshall Islands would be blockaded from the air.

Associated Press War Correspondent Paul Beam quoted Maj. Gen. Willis H. Hale, commander of the U. S. Seventh Army Air Force, as saying that with the capture of Kwajalein air bases, "all the Marshalls and the eastern Carolines have been brought within range of our bombers—including Truk, which is just on the fringe of our bombers' new effective striking radius."

The Truk naval base is 938 airline miles southwest of Kwajalein and 798 miles north of nearly neutralized Rabaul.

Army bombers and Navy carrier planes kept up air assaults on other atolls in the Marshalls, striking February 3, 4 and 5 at Jaluit, Eniwetok, Wotje, Maloelap, Mil and Utelang.

The Japanese lost between 24 and 30 more planes at Rabaul, New Britain, and Wewak, northern New Guinea over the week end. Bombers unloaded 167 tons of bombs on Cape Hopsins, enemy supply and refueling base on the north-central coast of New Britain.

Gen. MacArthur's communique underlined the enemy's deteriorating air protection for Rabaul. De-

Ballot Battle

The Senate opened its third week of debate on the question of votes for men and women of the armed services today, with proponents of a "States Rights" bill seeking to sidetrack the administration's federal war ballot measure.

Administration forces are confident they have the votes to push the Green-Lucas Federal Ballot bill through to final passage. This would send the entire controversy back to the House. The possibilities in such an event point to a deadlock, and many legislators predict both bills will be dropped and a new measure introduced giving the states the right to say whether they will accept federal ballots.

Tax Bill Ready

After six months of work, Congress was due to give final approval today to the $2,315,000,000 tax bill, and shuttle it off to the White House. The second wartime revenue measure, which increases total federal revenue to $42,239,200,000 a year, has been criticized by the President as "unrealistic."

Senator McCarran (D., Nev.) took over the chairmanship of the Senate's special liquor shortage investigating committee with an announcement that he proposed to find out "where the liquor is, who has it and why it is being withheld from normal trade channels."

He told reporters he had decided to take Van Nuys' place as liquor subcommittee chairman as well.

As an example of how the Army Air Force is meeting its assignment to "keep 'em flying," a House Military Aviation sub-committee disclosed today 165,000 men were graduated last year from the training command.

BROTHERS ARE HELD WITH BOND FIXED AT $5,000

Clark and Paul Tipton in Serious Trouble at Wilmington

Clark Tipton, 25, Dayton, and Paul Tipton, 20, Willard Street, Washington C. H., old offenders, are being held in the Clinton County jail with bonds fixed at $5,000 each, for armed robbery of a filling station in Wilmington, and have also admitted to a series of hold-ups in Middletown which netted them some $700.

The two men were taken into custody a week ago, and Monday morning were arraigned before Mayor C. C. Nichols, of Wilmington, where they pleaded guilty and were held to the higher court.

The two youths have been in trouble numerous times here and elsewhere, and have served twice in the Boys' Industrial School and Mansfield Reformatory, according to officers.

The pair was arrested when one of them drew a gun during a fight at Vandalia, Ohio, the brothers were returned to Wilmington after they had been identified by Frank Tener, owner of the Wilmington oil station, as the men who had robbed him of $40, Christmas Eve, Police Chief Everett Downing said.

A Middletown police officer and six other Middletown persons, all of them had been victimized in the drugstore hold-ups, went to Wilmington. The brothers confessed all three robberies after the seven persons had identified them as the Middletown bandits, Downing said.

On January 8, a holdup was staged by two robbers in the Castelli drugstore, Central Avenue and Verity Parkway, Middletown. On January 21, 15 customers were held up and robbed by two men, believed at the time to be the same pair, in the Gillen-Crowe drugstore on Titus Avenue, Middletown. The total loot in both robberies has been estimated at more than $700.

Clark Tipton was paroled from Mansfield Reformatory when serving time on an armed robbery charge and Paul Tipton has served time at the Boys' Industrial School in Lancaster.

In both robberies, the bandits were estimated by police to have obtained more than $700. Approximately $160 was taken from customers and $200 from cash registers in the Gillen-Crowe store.

administrative setup would result in better highways and greater economy and efficiency in administration.

"In the state where the balance of political power is always so evenly balanced that there are frequent turnovers in political control and consequent changes in the administration of highways, this important function of government has been made the football of partisan politics," the committee stated in its report.

"The administration of as big a business as that of highways in a large and populous state like Ohio, which spends about $60,000,000 a year on its highways, calls for continuity of administrative policy."

"... In Ohio ... the average length of term of the highway director has been less than four years. A private business corporation of such magnitude would go on the rocks with such frequency of change in both policy and personnel."

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Stalin's Red armies continue to carve their way into the Hitlerite front—further consolidation of their position about the strategic fortified center of Narva up north in the Baltic State of Estonia, another great thrust into pre-war Poland, and down in the Dnieper Bend the encirclement of five more Nazi divisions to add to the ten divisions surrounded last week.

Militarily the situation on the while in the European theater looks good for the Allies. Still, it seems to me that, taking the long view, the political developments which are flooding out of Moscow are even more important than the fresh gains on the battle fields. Actually, of course, it's because of the victories that we are getting the surge of political developments.

The European conflict is rapidly becoming a politico-military affair. And the whole trend seems to be in the direction of extending Russian influence westward across the continent—eastward into Asia, for that matter.

The big break came last week when we had Moscow's startling announcement extending the sovereignty of the sixteen states of the Soviet Union to include the right to establish independent diplomatic relations abroad and maintain armies. The world is still trying to figure that out. However, one thing seems clear, and this is that Moscow has created a flexible commonwealth of nations which can absorb as many foreign countries as decide they would like to join.

Today we get a follow-up. Russia intimates strongly that she plans to give the stamp of approval to the establishment of a Polish State independent of the exiled government in London as a basis for settling the not Russo-Polish territorial dispute.

But that's only half the story. Moscow radio says the first move of the new foreign office in the Ukraine—one of the Republics of the Soviet Union—will be to make a treaty with the "new" Polish government. Then, says the radio, "a new democratic Poland will arise." The broadcast didn't suggest that this new Polish government might apply for admission to the Soviet Commonwealth of Nations, but who says it won't? We should know the answer before long, if the Red armies continue their westward rush into Poland.

Coincident with this significant developments, Moscow landed with both feet on the Bulgarian government. The Sofia regime, which is a Hitlerite puppet, is charged with aggression against Russia and Yugoslavia.

This Soviet move would seem calculated to unhorse the Bulgarian government and bring the country into the Red camp. Indications long have been that it wouldn't take much pressure to persuade the Bulgarian people to take matters into their own hands. Since the majority of them are pro-Russian and have been clamoring for the government to desert Hitler.

Of course, the winning over of Bulgaria would be a grand gain for the Allies. It might be the thing which would blow the Nazis out of the Balkan Peninsula and place their right wing in Russia in still further jeopardy. However, I think we are entitled to interpret Moscow's maneuver as fitting perfectly into the picture of Soviet extension of influence.

Moscow has made it quite clear that it considers the Balkan Peninsula to be within Russia's sphere of influence. That doesn't mean the Soviet intends to annex Balkan territory. However, Communism already has a hold not only in Bulgaria but in Greece and Yugoslavia. Should Communist governments be established in those states, they might apply for membership in the Soviet Union.

Admission of the coming Russian domination of at least eastern Europe is seen in the declaration last week by Dr. Benes, president of the Little Republic of Czechoslovakia, that his country is going to orient its policy towards Moscow. Prior to the Nazi upheaval, Czechoslovakia looked to France and Britain for security. Now it's the Soviet Union.

AN ANCIENT LANDMARK

In Proverbs XXII, 28, it is written, "Remove not the ancient landmark which thy fathers have set." Such landmarks may be real to chart one's course on a journey. Others may occur in customs and habits, founded on experience. Their survival is no accident and generally they continue to serve a real purpose.

Successive systems of society inevitably have carried over some of the customs and traditions of the preceding order. When especially strong customs and traditions may appear as formal law and may even acquire a sacred quality. It was this sort of thing the writer in Proverbs had in mind.

The principle of giving notice where rights are involved has long been sanctioned successively by custom, by the common law, by the written codes, and by constitutions. In some cases, like the publication of marriage banns, notices have had a religious application. This practice of giving notice is an ancient landmark, sanctioned by custom and required by necessity lest the individual or society be harmed. Its observance and preservation are vital in a democratic society.

Yank Invasion Force In Italy Has No Snap In Advance On Rome

Most Experienced Elements of German Army Not Only Bar Way But Are Massed for Attempt To Drive Allies Back Into the Sea

By DANIEL DELUCE
(Associated Press War Correspondent representing the combined American Press)

WITH THE FIFTH ARMY ON THE ANZIO BEACHHEAD IN ITALY, Feb. 2.—(Delayed)—(AP)—Is the fateful pattern of Salerno being repeated on this wide but shallow bridgehead within sight of Rome's radio towers.

The tempo of British-American operations at the southern coastal approaches to the Eternal City has been slower than the Fifth Army's invasion south of Naples last September.

Although in 12 days ashore our seaborne forces have entrenched themselves strongly in the flat farmlands, on a beachhead more than 14 miles wide and extending eight miles from the sea, the enemy retains control of the dominant high ground and the main Rome highway through Cisterna.

Most of this sizable beachhead was seized in the face of meager resistance from surprised scattered German forces. "This is nothing like Salerno," the veteran American infantry grinned then, mopping up small squads of the enemy in the first easy days.

But now the grim, determined doughboy tells you, "it's worse than Salerno."

What the situation boils down to is this: At Cisterna, where heavy Allied air and naval support helped break a German counter-offensive within one week, the Germans have had 12 days to mass their troops for what, according to official released information, will turn into a furious effort to wipe out the entire Allied foothold around Anzio.

Until the beachhead has passed this critical test, it can not be described as a military success.

The action at Cisterna last Sunday, when American shock troops gallantly attacked but fell short of capturing this "town of a thousand pillboxes," marked a new and bitter phase.

German resistance is strong at every point of the beachhead perimeter, and increasing counter-attacks indicate it is the enemy's ambition to wrest and exploit the initiative.

The Luftwaffe has not been strong enough to effectively challenge Allied air superiority, but it has inflicted some damage and now is harrying the forward Allied troops. Long-range enemy guns still are capable of lobbing shells into the vicinity of Anzio, itself.

One source estimated today the Luftwaffe lost 200 planes in the early attempts to knock out Anzio as an invasion port.

Despite reinforcements of anti-aircraft guns and the almost constant pressure of Allied fighter-patrols over the beachhead, a formation of 25 German planes bombed and strafed Allied troops and vehicles this afternoon.

Weather permitting, however, the Allied air forces can deal out ten or twenty-fold the punishment inflicted by the Luftwaffe. This massive Allied air strength, together with Allied warships close offshore, are among the factors which have convinced ground troops here that the beachhead not only will be held, but will be strategically expanded.

Enemy concentrations and artillery on the northern flank, however, already have taken on such imposing size that this support can be quickly stepped up in case of emergency.

Fighting men here are acutely aware that the public in the United States and Great Britain may already be expressing chagrin that 12 days have not been enough for them to march some 35 miles from Anzio to Rome and that military second-guessers may be referring to the amphibious attack as "too little, too early."

But the payoff on this campaign will be whether the Allies capture

CANTEEN BURRS ARE WORKED OUT BY LIONS CLUB

Delivery Schedules, Cookie Baking Dates On Weekly Basis

Working smoothly now, the Lions Club—through the cooperation of wives of its members and Mrs. Ted Pierson, proprietress of the bus station lunch counter—has a fairly efficient machine in motion for its canteen service here. True, there are a few burrs here and there, but the essential set-up goes along like clock-work.

On Thursday, Saturday and Monday of each week, a three-day supply of cellophane-packaged cookies—two in each package—is deposited at the bus station. An average day's supply is around 75 packages—totaling about 500 each week.

Consumption of the home-made pastries is by far greater on week ends when servicemen's travel is heavier. Whenever a serviceman or woman orders coffee, milk or a soft drink, he is given the drink, plus a package of two cookies, with the compliments of the Lions Club.

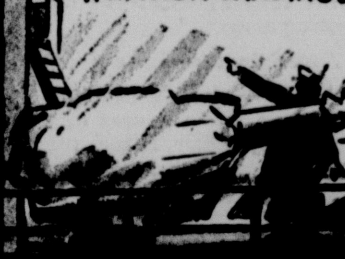

Two Lions are appointed each week to call on members whose wives are scheduled to bake the cookies. The women, who work in pairs, finish a three-days supply of cookies in about two hours. After the baked goods is packaged, it is delivered to the bus station to be given to soldiers, sailors and marines passing through here.

Rome. The chance was taken and the divisions were risked. Some of the most experienced elements of the German Army bar the way.

There's no rosy optimism among the Allied forces of the Anzio beachhead. There's a solid conviction, however, that the Germans—regardless of how hard and desperately they may fight—will ultimately be forced into another, "advance to the rear."

JAP SNIPER IS TREED BY WILY FIJI SCOUT

SUVA, Fiji (AP)—A Fiji scout who knows his trees saved an American reconnaissance force on a recent foray in the Solomons.

Inching up a river, the Americans ran into deadly mortar fire. Field glasses swept the valley but the enemy battery could not be detected.

Then the Fijian scout pointed to a cluster of trees on a hillside. "It's the first time I've ever seen that kind of tree growing anywhere but beside the water," he said.

Fire was concentrated on the trees and out popped a Japanese mortar crew. The Americans picked the Japs off as they scrambled up the hillside.

Do You Measure Up?

The Fourth War Loan Drive is in full swing. And now is a good time to address a word to the individual whose principal motive in buying bonds is the attainment of future financial security and a regular income from interest payments on the bonds. The trouble with this type of bond buyer is that when further purchases become inconvenient and no longer fit his "investment program," he tends to keep his pocket buttoned. He claims that he has done his share. The time is long past for this line of thinking.

Bonds today must be bought by individuals in prodigious quantities. Patriotism, not personal profit, should compel their purchase. As a matter of fact, if we mean what we say in glowing tributes to freedom and our professed willingness to make sacrifices to win the war, we should be glad to buy bonds regardless of interest enticements.

Unless bond buying, in the last analysis, is wholly dictated by the urge to cast our lot so far as possible with the men at the front, we can lay no claim to being patriotic. Real patriots care not a whit for personal security or profit when their nation is in peril.

Our freedom is in deadly peril because too many people are working for time and a half instead of for victory. The Fourth War Loan Campaign is an opportunity to turn over a new leaf. Buy bonds for the sake of your country—and forget yourself. If you do this, you can justly call yourself a true American.

Delinquency Problems

What good will it do to win this great war if, while men fight for freedom and honor, their children are corrupted?

Distressing accounts come from many sources, and observation in almost any city corroborates them, telling of increasing juvenile delinquency and a breaking down of decency and self-restraint among boys and girls. With fathers in the fighting services and so many mothers engaged in work that keeps them away from home most of the time, children tend to run wild. Far too many of them get into bad company and form evil habits.

Society in general, caught unprepared by the sudden changes brought by war, has not yet started handling these juvenile problems intelligently. Nothing, not even the winning of the war, is more important than the preservation of decency and order among school children and young people in general. This problem is so big, and so widespread, that no more time should be lost in handling it more effectively.

There might well be organized efforts for juvenile decency and order on a big scale in every city. But the first step, perhaps, should be the awakening of parents to the dangers threatening their own homes.

Sergeant Finds Odd Bedfellows

WITH FIFTH ARMY, Italy—Sergeant Charles Baker of Williamsport, Pa., was assigned to a forward observation party. He knew an infantry observation post was situated nearby, so when night came he decided to seek companionship. After struggling through the underbrush, he came upon a clearing and saw three inert forms on the ground.

Careful not to awaken the men, Baker rolled up in his blankets alongside the three. Came the dawn, Baker stirred, opened one eye and looked at his nearest "bedfellow." What he saw set him wide awake and reaching for his gun. There was no mistaking the German uniform!

Then Baker saw that the three German soldiers were dead.

crime and the punishment for crime, it is hard to find many decent things to write about in these days. Perhaps never since the Dark Ages, when Europe suffered a blackout of civilization that lasted for almost a thousand years, has the general situation outside of the United Nations been so evil.

This human throwback on the part of the Germans and Japanese, developing simultaneously on opposites of the earth, burst upon a world supposedly highly civilized in all but a few unimportant areas. It developed such impetus and power that the really civilized groups were almost overwhelmed by the modern cave men—barbarians in the garb of civilization. From now on it will be important for all decent people to keep their eyes and ears open, ready to detect and prevent such eruptions of the beast that is not yet eliminated from human nature.

The highly developed science of psychology is capable of detecting and modifying criminal tendencies, but so far it has been applied only to individuals, not nations. It might be a good idea to develop research institutions to study the collective psychology of national and racial groups, doing whatever is possible to educate and humanize those liable to dangerous crime waves.

Washington at a Glance

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—Well, it's happened again. The capital of the United States is changing "mayors" or perhaps I should say "co-mayors." Sen. Pat McCarran, of Nevada, is quitting his job as chairman of the Senate district committee cold to take over the chairmanship of the Senate Judiciary committee, vacated by the death of Sen. Frederick Van Nuys.

This is, of course, in line with the Congressional policy of no member ever holding chairmanships of two committees. The members of both chambers hasten to throw off the burden of helping to manage the national capital. I'm waiting for the day when some Senator says he can't take the District committee chairmanship because he's chairman of the library committee, or some House member turns it down for chairmanship of the committee on disposition of executive papers.

The point is that there are no votes in the District of Columbia, and no member of Congress can win an iota on polling day by citing his record as chairman of the district committee. Don't blame the members. The fault is the voting public's, which apparently doesn't give even one of those two whoops how its capital is run.

As a result a few disinterested members succeed to the job because they have nothing better to do and except for a few half-hearted gestures are willing to let the three presidentially appointed commissioners go on mismanaging district affairs. It has been going on now for 70 or 80 years, as a result of which Washington is a beautiful example of how a city should not be run.

The next "mayor" on the Senate side probably will be Sen. Theodore G. "That Man" Bilbo, of Mississippi, but don't expect him to show any of his old Mississippi zip in straightening out the district's tangled affairs. Unless he gets stuck with the job he won't stick around any longer than McCarran did, or Sen. Robert R. Reynolds (now chairman of the military affairs committee), or Sen. William H. King before him, to mention only the last three-year crop.

On the other hand, a lot should be said for Rep. Jennings Randolph, of West Virginia. In spite of the fact that he serves on four other important committees, he has strung along with his chairmanship of the House district committee for four years.

Of the Washington stories I have heard lately, I like the one about the dashing young widow, who was wopped by a Cabinet member in the crush of a wartime tea.

"Well," said the C.M., "I see you have been getting plenty of diplomatic attention." "What do you mean?" asked the young lady. "Every time I have seen you this afternoon, you have been talking to six ambassadors and two ministers," he explained.

The young woman looked honestly puzzled. "Six ambassadors and two ministers. I don't remember them. Who were they?"

"Tony Biddle," said the C.M. and walked off snickering at his own wit, because Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, U.S. representative to most of the governments in exile, is just exactly that.

Eyes Often First To Show Disease

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

"IF I HAD to confine myself to the examination of two organs in order to arrive at a diagnosis in a hundred consecutive patients I would select the skin and the eyes," said a distinguished physician and one whose diagnostic acumen has earned him the right to an opinion.

Dr. Clending will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

"And," he added, "if I were limited to one I would choose the eye." The skin has been called the mirror of the system by one of the most eminent dermatologists of our time. And how it does reflect the disturbances that go on beneath! "He doesn't look well," you say, after you part from a friend you haven't seen for a long time. Or—"How splendid you look—10 years younger!"

Appearance of Eyes and Skin

The judgments are based on the appearance of the eyes and skin. I saw a soldier lately returned from the war in Africa. Ah, my son, I said to myself, you have had your first experience with malaria. There was a yellowish discoloration on his forehead around the hair line, beneath the tan which comes from taking atabrine, a remedy to prevent malarial attacks. It is a dye and repeated use temporarily discolors the skin.

The eyes—what wells of information they are! They glow with health or reflect illness by their dull sheen. How can we tell anger, or embarrassment, or cold dislike from a glance? Is it the contraction of the pupil or the pull of the muscles, or the narrowing of the lids? No one has ever studied this thoroughly.

Sir Charles Bell, that great anatomist and great artist, made a start in his Anatomy of Expression. "In pain," he says, "the eyeballs are suffused with stagnant blood, there is convulsive action about the muscles of the eyes. The brow is drawn down, the cheek raised, the nostril drawn up." In rage—"the eyeballs are seen largely: they roll and are inflated."

Grave's Disease

The terrified expression of Grave's disease or exophthalmic goiter with its popping eyes has been stamped on men coming out of battle. Not only the expression, but the disease.

I have been compiling a list for a paper on diagnosis of the diseases that affect the eyes. It makes a long one.

Jaundice, of course, is seen in the eyes before it can be detected in the skin and it remains in the eye long after it has left the skin. The dead white of anemia shows up in the eyeballs.

Diabetes, high blood pressure, hardening of the arteries, kidney disease, brain tumor, half a dozen nervous diseases, blood diseases, and the chronic infectious diseases, tuberculosis and syphilis, all affect the retina of the eyes in such a characteristic way that the oculist can make the diagnosis without resorting to the consultation of the general physician or the resources of the laboratory.

Medium Sized Arteries Exposed. It is not only the diagnosis itself, but in high blood pressure and hardening of the arteries it is the severity of the condition which can be determined by an examination of the retina. That is the only place in the body where one can see the medium-sized arteries exposed so their elasticity and thickening can be determined.

Many of the acute contagious diseases show up first or last in the eye—measles, chicken pox, etc. Mumps may mump in the lacrimal gland first. A haemorrhage into the white of the eye may denote whooping cough.

So if your oculist gives you a pronouncement on your general condition, or your physician wants an oculist in consultation, believe him.

CHAPTER THIRTY-NINE

MALLORY raised her head for Carlos' kiss. It was miraculous, just as she had known it would be. A wild sweetness raced through her, a tingling that touched her entire body and filled her ears with music sweeter than that of any orchestra that ever had accompanied her. The kitchenette dissolved and became a shimmering, vast place without boundaries except the rose and silvery type of clouds usually found in sunsets.

After a long moment the man drew back his head to look into Mallory's violet-blue eyes. Her recent tears had made them even more beautiful; they were washed clear; their sheen was glorious.

Carlos put his warm cheek against hers. "I've wanted to kiss you for such a long time," he whispered. "Since the first moment when I sat beside you in the restaurant—you remember, Mallory? When you were being interviewed?" Did she remember? The question was superfluous. Carlos said, "It seems ages ago."

"It seems ages to me, too." The girl tightened her arms about his neck. "I thought you never would."

"I thought I'd never get the chance," Carlos said. He leaned away to look into her eyes a second time. "My lovely princess," he breathed. His lips, cupped about her shoulders, now spread across her back to draw her close against him. "I must kiss you once more before we leave this enchanted room."

Enchanted room? The little white-tiled kitchenette. So he felt the same as she, mused Mallory, as if they were in some magic place. He kissed her, not just once, but several times, swiftly, on her cheek and throat, then slowly on her mouth. That warm, sweet pressure brought back that shimmering world without boundaries. Without people, it seemed.

But it wasn't. Mallory remembered suddenly. She forced herself to lean away from the man's arms. "Carlos, Manuella and Richard will be wondering why it takes us so long to prepare drinks. We must get back into the living room."

The first mention of the Mexican girl's name had put a frown on Carlos' face. It went away now to be replaced by his attractive smile. "You are right—but oh, my love, I have to see you again soon. Come out with me later tonight," he whispered quickly. There were sounds outside the swinging door. "I'll telephone you," he murmured, and picked up the key of telephones.

When Manuella and Richard walked in—Manuella silent, but the engineer talking briskly and very loudly—Mallory was across the room from Carlos, packing shaved ice into glasses.

Carlos said in a fumbling manner, "We thought to make new drinks for you two—that would be sense—we thought, to make all at once." He ignored the Mexican girl, but smiled at Richard Blythe.

Blythe smiled back. He chuckled in fact. "An excellent idea, inasmuch as we both have finished ours." He raised humorous eyebrows at the blond girl, who turned suddenly and brought the three ice-filled glasses. She gave the newcomers pleasant glances, but said nothing. Richard Blythe leaned against the cabinet where Carlos was squeezing limes. "We thought you two might need some help out here."

"We thought you might need something," Manuella amended. Her thick lashes all but entwined. "A chaperone, perhaps," she said with lazy significance.

Mallory gave deliberately the giggle of a high school girl. "A chaperone?" she repeated, as if her visitor might be teasing her.

Between her black eyelashes Manuella scanned the blond girl's face, noting particularly her mouth. Looking for lipstick, Mallory knew instinctively. Her face had been rubbed so bare of makeup while she wept for Prizm that there was not even powder, much less lipstick. Her malicious delight, because of that, made it easy to laugh again into the Mexican girl's beautiful, creamy-toned face. How she had worried when her guests had arrived, Mallory recalled, because Carlos would see her without the added embellishments of expert makeup. And how glad she was now.

Manuella seemed uncertain of herself; she bit her upper lip nervously, then looked at Carlos. He, too, seemed self-possessed; that little embarrassment with which he had greeted the visitors to the kitchen had gone. She won't see any lipstick on him either, chuckled the singer inwardly, as she found small cocktail napkins and placed them beside Carlos.

The Mexican girl returned to her condemnation. "You laugh if you please, Mallory, but you're in Mexico now and chaperones are not to be laughed at down here."

"Please, Manuella," admonished Carlos. She paid no attention to him. "After all, Mallory, it is a custom. You must respect it."

"I shall, if you insist," retorted the hostess. "I was here in the kitchen alone with Carlos, while you were alone in the living room with a man you've just met. I certainly respect your worry, Manuella." She turned and headed for the living room herself.

The others followed. It was as if nothing had happened. Manuella took her second drink and promptly began talking about everything. Mallory was glad to let her slip her limeade and watch Carlos. Not directly, but in the gold-framed mirror, it was heavenly to sit there, feeling his kisses on her lips, knowing there would be more. Never had she been so gloriously in love.

Even if she had loved David—which she knew now she hadn't—Carlos would have stricken him from her mind with nothing more than one look from those eloquent brown eyes. Mexican men, to Mallory, had meant the types she had seen in the Mexican quarter in Los Angeles, the ones she had seen along the highway or in a dreamy way, the theatrical Old World dons in their velvet costumes. Those of operas and movies. Expecting that she had found Carlos with his made-to-order business suits and hand-tailored shirts, with his cosmopolitan education and manners, with his good looks that astounded her anew each time she saw him.

Eventually Latham and Roberts came, 45 minutes later than the hour Mallory had mentioned. Manuella greeted them with effusion. There was the usual hand shaking among the men, then the hostess sent the ladies into the kitchen to wait upon themselves. They returned and the conversation became more evenly divided, Manuella leading, however.

At a little past 7 o'clock she rose to make her departure. "Come, Carlos, we have a dinner engagement."

Mallory's eyes left his reflection in the mirror, and turned their violet-blue gaze directly upon him. Then she looked at Richard Blythe with a message of entreaty.

He was holding Manuella's lynx cape. "I'll run along with you, I believe. That is, if you don't mind dropping me at my house?" Apparently he intended walking blissfully past his own machine, parked by the Montecito entrance. In the midst of all the chatter that is a part of polite leave-taking in the Mexican capital, he managed to say softly to Mallory, "I'll try to clear the coast for you, princess."

Carlos looked less worried now that the engineer was going along. Obviously he also thought Blythe might free him from Manuella. As for her, she seemed delighted. Her farewells to the two American reporters were as affable as her greetings had been.

"Now you see," Mallory told them when the door closed after the departing trio, "how mistaken you are about Manuella? I've never seen a more democratic girl."

"Yes," agreed Latham, "she is. Overly democratic in fact, but as I explained before, it is distinctly 'Lady of the Manor' stuff, despite her outer graciousness." He lazied into a deep chair, stretching long legs out before him. "Dish up a couple more drinks, Roberts," he ordered the other reporter. With Roberts out of the room, Latham again returned to the subject of Manuella. He explained idly, "As much as we do for her with her charities, she should invite us to her house. Not a cozy dinner, but at least to one of her come-onesome affairs."

"Don't talk like a foolish child," chided the singer. "I'm sure, among rich girls in the States, you've encountered the same snobbery." "That's just the point. It isn't snobbery. It's a sort of aloofness that the aristocracy has down here, a superiority that is maddening. Perhaps you'll never experience it. After all, you are the great La Baker."

Roberts came back with the drinks just as the telephone rang. Mallory murmured excuses and answered, her lips turning soft, her ear expecting the silvery voice of Carlos.

Instead, it was the man at the desk. "There is a package here for you, Miss Baker. A Mr. Patrick left it."

Understand Your Federal Income Tax

DEDUCTIONS FOR CONTRIBUTIONS (PART 2)

Charitable contributions or gifts are deductible for Federal income tax purposes only if made for a public purpose, and not for a personal purpose. The rules for these deductions are limited strictly by law and, in most cases, permit deductions only if the gifts are made to an organized or incorporated educational, religious, charitable, scientific, literary, or governmental organization. Gifts to some veterans' organizations also are deductible.

Because these deductions are limited by law, gifts to individuals and many other types of contributions, however worthy they may be, cannot be deducted. The law defines five categories of contributions which are allowable as deductions to individuals in computing normal tax and surtax but not victory tax (up to 15 percent of the net income computed before the deduction is made) as follows:

(1) Contributions to or for the use of the United States or any of its political subdivisions or possessions, provided the contributions are to be used solely for public purposes, are deductible. If a contribution is for the benefit of the donor, however, and not for public purposes, such a contribution would not be deductible.

(2) Contributions made to a corporation, trust, community chest, fund, or foundation created or organized in the United States or any of its possessions or under the law of the United States or of any State or Territory or of any possession of the United States, no part of the earnings of which inures to the benefit of any individual and no substantial part of the activities of which is attempting to influence legislation and which is organized and operated exclusively for one or more of the following purposes: (a) charitable, (b) religious, (c) educational, (d) scientific, (e) literary, (f) prevention of cruelty to animals or children, are deductible.

Such organizations would include the Red Cross, Community Chests and the National War Fund. Religious contributions would include all contributions and assessments paid to religious groups, including pew rents, and church "assessments" and "dues." Contributions for educational purposes would include those made to nonprofit schools and universities, Boy Scouts, the D. A.R. and like organizations and to other nonprofit educational organizations. Contributions to organizations for scientific purposes would include nonprofit research foundations and other nonprofit domestic organizations engaged in research.

(3) Contributions are also deductible if made to a domestic fraternal society operating under the lodge system, but only if the contributions are to be used for one of the purposes listed above. Dues and membership fees in such societies are not deductible.

(4) Contributions made to organizations of United States war veterans and auxiliaries are deductible if such organizations, units, or societies are organized in the United States or any of its possessions, and if no part of the net earnings of the organization is for the benefit of any private shareholder or individual.

In addition to contributions of the character indicated above, certain other contributions are allowable, as a business expense, to a taxpayer engaged in trade or business, if the contribution is in furtherance of his trade or business. Such contributions would include donations to a chamber of commerce or to trade associations, if such contributions are in general furtherance of a trade or business, and are not for the purpose of influencing legislation. These business contributions are deductible in computing victory tax as well as normal tax and surtax.

A contribution may be made in money or property, but if in property, then the amount of the contribution is measured by the fair market value of the property at the time of the contribution.

In preparing a Federal income tax return the amount shown in item 11 for contributions must be supported by a schedule showing the names of the organizations to which contributions were made and the amounts contributed.

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—(P)—Contrary to popular rumors, William Helle, the Louisiana oil man, didn't bankroll that purchase of the Valdina race horses. . . ## Buck Swim Star Called Greatest CHICAGO, Feb. 7.—(P)—Bill Smith, 19-year-old Hawaiian aquatic star now wearing the colors of the Great Lakes Naval Training Station where he instructs water wary recruits, holds so many records he doesn't bother to keep track of them.

In the former Ohio State freshman's latest free style achievement last Saturday he navigated 100 yards in 50 seconds—one-tenth of a second under the mark posted recently by Alan Ford of Yale in bettering his own listed record of 50.6. Lt. Walter Colbath, officer in charge of swimming at Great Lakes, is convinced Smith is the greatest natural swimmer the competitive world has known.

Two Games In Ohio Cage Program

By HAROLD HARRISON

COLUMBUS, Feb. 7.—(P)—The Big Red from Denison and Bowling Green's Bee-Gees will have it out against Wednesday night and the winner will be in an excellent spot to grab off at least the second best record among Ohio's college basketball teams.

Miami's undefeated Redskins don't show any signs of slipping from the top position so the battle between Bowling Green and Denison—the state's two highest scoring outfits—looks as the foremost tilt of a 31-game program this week.

Denison, averaging better than 70 points a game, took a 53 to 39 beating from Bowling Green in their first game this season but the Big Red will have the advantage of its home floor Wednesday night. Denison's only other loss in 15 games was to Ohio State. Bowling Green also has lost

Big Scores and Close Games Fail To Change Standings

The crash of bowling ball and pins all last week on the Main Street alleys produced some of the best scores and keenest competition of the season, but it failed to make any material changes in the standings for any of the four leagues in regular operation—unless the narrowing of the gaps and tightening of the races could be considered in that light.

The always-tough Mt. Sterling outfit continued to set the pace in the Men's City League by winning two while the Coca Colas, in second place, were taking a two-out-of-three beating. The Pure Oilers won all three of their games and took a firmer grip of No. 3 spot when the slipping fourth place Ringers from Jeffersonville were losing all three of their games. The Producers and Pennington's Bakers failed to break their tie of fifth and sixth places when each made a clean sweep of its match. Melvin's Stone Crushers and the Slagle and Kirk outfit remained in rear without bettering their positions.

Lloyd's Markettes stretched their lead in the Women's City League by winning all three games while the second place Dairymaids could add but one to their victory column. The Farmerettes and Craig's Airsteppers remained in third and fourth positions but the gap separating them was narrowed.

The Hawkson Treaders kept pace with their immediate leaders by adding two wins and pulled a little further away from the Business and Professional Women who failed to better their lot. The Record-Herald Newsgirls, out of the cellar for the first time last week, took another step up the stairway by winning two out of three while the last place Morris Store team continued to trail with one win in three games last week.

The Foremen eased on out in front in the API Men's League by winning two out of three while the second place Inspectors No. 1 were knocked off to the same tune. The Office Boys, who lost all three games, started the week in a tie with the Production force which won two out of three while the

Star Buck Back Is To Go to Army

CLEVELAND, Feb. 7.—(P)—Dean Sensenbaur, backfield star on Ohio State's 1943 football team, was appointed to the United States Military Academy yesterday by Ohio's congressman-at-large, George H. Bender (R) of Cleveland.

Bender announced the appointment after a conference with the 18-year-old freshman from Uhrichsville. Sensenbaur will report at West Point, N. Y., in June. He played with the east squad in the annual East-West charity game at San Francisco last New Year's Day.

Women Bowlers Flock to Tourney

COLUMBUS, Feb. 7.—(P)—The annual Ohio Women's Bowling tournament, scheduled from February 19 to April 16 at the Olentangy village alleys here is assured a record entry of 440 teams. The previous high was 345 in 1942 at Lima.

Association officers said teams would represent 47 towns. Columbus has 106 entries and Toledo tops the out-of-townners with 45.

Office crew was taking a white-washing. The Heat Treaters and Production Control were deadlocked and the Engineers and Inspectors No. 2, brought up the rear.

The Gremlins, who won two out of three last week, were still well out in front in the API Women's League with the Aeronauts giving closest competition. The Spitfires, not within immediate striking distance of second place, also faced the possibility of having to win all three games this week to keep from dropping into fourth place after the B-19s caught up with them last week by winning one while they were losing all three. The P-38s and Gliders remained in the rear but were not so far back they could not catch up.

U. S. WARSHIPS BOMBARD JAP HOMELAND—SURPRISE PUTS ENEMY IN PANIC

a bombing mission with Navy planes over the same part of Paramushiro.

The planes of Commodore Leslie E. Gehres' fleet air wing force were back last night, the second consecutive night of their resumed "Tokyo Short Line Express." They hit shortly after the bombardment.

The island defenders perhaps had been watching for them instead of glancing out to sea once in awhile because alert shore watchers might easily have seen the dark silent shadows of the approaching ships without use of any detecting devices.

The island was clearly visible from the ships—its snow-covered mass rearing white, cold and lightless from the sea. The black-out supported belief the Japanese expected another air attack.

A division of destroyers under Commander Hunter Hood, who captained the destroyer Smith when it was struck on the forward deck by a flaming Japanese Zero in South Pacific action, led heavier ships of the task force into shelling position along the eastern side of Kurabu Point. The remainder of the force, led by Capt. H. L. Gearing, another dashing Navy commander, swung westward toward the Sea of Okhotsk and bombarded from that side.

The "Open Fire" order came at 2:30 A. M. by our watches, at 9:30 P. M. Japan time. "Here we go," said Lt. (JG) Eli Hill of Dawson, Ga., communications and assistant gunnery officer with whom I stood on the director platform above the destroyer's bridge.

Star shells made the snow-white shore bright and seemingly close enough to hit with a rock. Then the bombardment got underway in earnest. It was centered on buildings or other shore objects and one small merchant ship.

This vessel, clearly silhouetted against the white shore light, had a high plume of black smoke pouring from its stack. It apparently was trying desperately to move out of danger. The bombarding ships took turns banging away at it as they fell into position. It apparently was hit a number of times and left beached or badly crippled in the water. No other shipping was seen in the harbor area though a constant lookout was kept for torpedo boats and opposing warships.

Guns of the ships roared with only twice in 19 games, both defeats by the powerful Great Lakes Naval Training Station quintet.

Miami, which drubbed Wright Field Saturday night, 65 to 44, for its tenth straight conquest, will go out of the state for its only game of the week, meeting Canisius Saturday night.

Denison is undisputed leader in the Ohio Conference.

The eyes of the Big Ten also will be turned toward Ohio this week as Ohio State entertains undefeated Iowa twice. The Bucks, who split even with Purdue last week-end, losing 49 to 59, and winning 54 to 47, are sorely in need of both games to keep alive their faint hopes for at least a share of the conference crown.

The 31 games on the program this week include 11 with out-of-state foes.

Pat on Back For Baseball By Writers

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—(P)—Baseball glowed with added self-esteem today after robust verbal pat on the back received at the 21st annual dinner of the New York baseball writers last night.

Satire was provided by the scribes themselves in their homespun skits in which nothing is sacred. The serious note was found in the utterances and communications of such esteemed citizens as Lieut. Gen. Brehon Somervell, Lieut. Col. Larry S. MacPhail, Senator Scott Lucas of Illinois and baseball's own old man of the mountain—Commissioner K. M. Landis.

General Somervell was unable to attend, but in a telegram urged baseball to help in the maintenance of morale both at home and among our troops.

Commissioner Landis reiterated his statement of a year ago that baseball would continue as long as teams made up of players subject to the same war-time responsibilities as 130,000,000 other Americans could be put on the field.

Senator Lucas declared that as far as he could foresee baseball never would be ruled non-essential by the government. "If anybody does," he said, "he might just as well abolish elections."

Branch Rickey, president of the Brooklyn Dodgers, was presented the Bill Slocum Memorial Award for distinguished service to baseball, and Bill Dickey, Yankee catcher, was honored as the outstanding player of 1943.

dull angry spurts of flame. The wind blew choking smoke into our faces. Red and yellow tracer shells, some in salvos of three or more, seemed to drift gently shoreward, streaking the night with color. The flash of enemy guns and tracer streams added to the fireworks. Star shells floating above the sea and shore shed a glow against the background of white mountains. It was like an old-fashioned "hell-bustin'" Fourth of July.

Part of the task force I was with continued up the shore for some distance searching for other targets before turning out to sea. Behind us several fires were blazing. One in particular continued to burn with what appeared to be periodic explosions as if of gasoline or ammunition until finally it faded below the horizon.

This fire was still in sight when heavier flashes broke the night behind us. Again we could see tracer streams of Japanese anti-aircraft fire. It was the second section of Commodore Gehres' "Express" raiders coming over. The first I was told had hit the area about 15 minutes after the bombardment.

Every move of the task force had been exactly on schedule and after the attack was over it had seemed almost too easy. None disagreed with the sailor who said, "Why we ought to go ahead and take that place."

JUG McSPADEN WINS PHOENIX FROM BEHIND

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 7.—(P)—

The chips were down when Harold (Jug) McSpaden of Philadelphia reached the 16th green yesterday in the afternoon round of the Phoenix Open Golf Tournament finals.

It was there someone told him that Byron Nelson had finished the 72 holes of play with a 273, nine under par, and appeared to be the winner. That meant McSpaden would have to birdie the last two holes to gain a tie.

With the pressure on, he rammed down a 40-foot putt from the edge of the 17th green, then dropped a six-footer on the 18th for the birdies which delayed first prize presentation.

They tee off today in an 18-hole playoff for the first prize of a $10,000 war bond. The loser will receive a $750 bond.

Sam Byrd of Detroit and Craig Wood of Mamaroneck, N. Y., won $500 war bonds in tying for third and fourth places with 280.

The Russians were within 23 miles of the Kriovir Rog iron mines. The Nikolov victory had shattered German lines for 100 miles and Red army advances ranged up to 40 miles. Some 12,000 Germans were killed, 2,000 captured and mounds of materiel were seized. Moscow said the victories foreshadowed liberation of all southern Russia.

Advancing beyond Lutsk in old Poland, the Russians struck within 45 miles of the Bug River and 82 of Lwow. In Estonia, the Russians outflanked Narva north and south and cleared the east bank of the Narova River, which the Germans said had been crossed. The Estonian capital of Reval (Tallinn) was bombed.

Finland's Capital Bombed. Hundreds of Russian planes bombed the Finnish capital of Helsinki. Moscow denied an ultimatum had been served on Finland to quit the war. The Soviets bitterly denounced Bulgaria, Nazi Balkan state still at peace with Russia, for turning her Black Sea ports over to the Germans.

Thousands of women, children and elderly people began to evacuate Helsinki today in the wake of two Sunday night raids by Russian warplanes which may be the beginning of a Soviet offensive to eliminate Finland from the war.

Advices from the Finnish capital said more than 30 persons were killed and 35 fires started during the seven-hour attack. (A Finnish communique recorded in New York said more than 200 enemy planes took part and 38 persons were killed and 232 injured, other parts of Finland also were raided, the communique said.)

A Moscow radio announcement said the Estonian capital of Reval (Tallinn) also had been bombed, adding to the growing uneasiness in Sweden.

The Russians intimated they might favor a Polish state independent of the exiled government in London, hinting at "a friendly rapprochement" between such a state and the Ukraine, one of the 16 Soviet republics now empowered to conduct their own foreign affairs.

A showdown between the Allies and Spain was predicted in two weeks by London diplomats over British and American demands that Spain take her troops out of Russia, release Italian ships and curb German spies and trade. The Sunday Observer of London said

Markets and Finance

GRAIN MARKET NEWS SUMMARY

CHICAGO, Feb. 7.—(P)—A short-covering movement sent rye up for fractional gains in the grain market today, but wheat and oats were little changed when compared with last week's close. There were unconfirmed rumors of some sales of cash rye to accompany the short-covering rally.

Interest in the market lagged and trading generally was on a small scale. Many bookings were placed at 120,000 bushels. Grain elevator firms said the corn they had in their possession was high moisture grain and mild weather was not improving the corn's quality. A shortage of box cars keeps the corn from moving to terminals.

At the close wheat was  $\frac{1}{2}$  to  $\frac{1}{4}$  lower than last Saturday's close, May  $\frac{1}{2}$  to  $\frac{1}{4}$  lower, oats were off  $\frac{1}{4}$  to  $\frac{1}{2}$  May  $\frac{1}{2}$  to  $\frac{1}{4}$  lower, rye was  $\frac{1}{4}$  to  $\frac{1}{2}$  higher, May  $\frac{1}{2}$  to  $\frac{1}{4}$  higher, barley was  $\frac{1}{4}$  to  $\frac{1}{2}$  lower, May  $\frac{1}{2}$  to  $\frac{1}{4}$  lower.

TOO MUCH TALK CAUSES FIRE IN EXCHANGE HERE

Prompt Work Halts Threat To Telephone System Sunday Noon

Too much talk on certain rural telephone lines around noon Sunday resulted in eight switches being burned out in the central office of the Ohio Bell Telephone Company here.

The excessive use of the lines caused the wires to overheat, the insulation to ignite, and the fire to destroy lines affecting 25 rural lines with 243 subscribers, Manager Fred G. Rost explained. Fortunately, employees were there at the time and as soon as the blazing insulation was discovered, used carbon dioxide in extinguishing the flames before the firemen could reach the place.

However, the 243 subscribers were not aware that anything was happening, for workmen immediately transferred the lines to other switches to handle the service temporarily. In the meantime SOS calls were sent to all surrounding cities and within two or three hours 16 men, including 10 Ohio Bell telephone engineers, and six Western Electric Co. experts, were here with equipment taken from the Western Electric emergency supply stocks at Columbus, and with the aid of local employees, started the task of replacing the destroyed connections.

Working throughout the afternoon and all of Sunday night, the men had the lines completely restored by 8:15 A. M. Monday, and the switches in place once more.

When the management was notified of the fire and tests were started, the first thing ascertained was whether or not the war industry plants were affected in any way. They were not, however, and the quick work of transferring the load of the switches to other switches prevented any serious interference for even a minute, it is explained.

Due to standardization of equipment of the Bell Company, the workmen upon arriving here found equipment with which they were thoroughly familiar, and knew exactly what to do and did it in restoring the eight burned out switches, Rost explained.

Sometime ago, the company appealed to the public to use the telephone sparingly, and not engaged in long conversations about non-important matters, pointing out that the equipment here is overburdened and that complete new equipment had been planned but was halted by the war.

The public response was good and has helped tide over lack of full facilities for handling the heavy load, and this appeal is being renewed to prevent recurrence of fires or other troubles that might put a large portion of the system out of commission.

The Fire Department loaned the Bell Company some extinguishers to use until their carbon dioxide extinguishers can be replaced.

COLD WAVE PROVES TO BE FALSE ALARM

Mercury Drops to 27 for Low Over Week End

The "cold wave" which was expected to send the mercury down to 10 above zero by Monday morning, simply failed to materialize, and the lowest temperature recorded over the weekend was 27 degrees Sunday, while the peak Sunday was 53 degrees. By 8 A. M. Monday morning the reading was 32 degrees with forecast for rising temperatures. A year ago 50 and 26 were the extremes for the day.

COUNTY LAGGING FAR BEHIND ON WAR BOND QUOTA

Individual Workers Asked To 'Get Out Now' And Sell Bonds

So far—with nine days left of the Fourth War Loan—only $381,678.50 in War Bonds have been purchased by Fayette County. Just nine days left to pull $525,321.50 out of the pockets of individuals and corporations here.

"Now is the time for individual workers to get out and ring every doorbell in their territory," one spokesman for the War Finance Committee said. "The money is there—lying in bank deposits or burning holes in pocketbooks. It's up to the workers to get out and sell bonds right now, before the drive is any closer to the end," he continued.

A few more corporation purchases—admittedly the mainstay of any bond drive—are expected within the next few days and there may be still other corporation bond buying not known of now.

"Everyone needs to be sold again," the spokesman continued. He credited some of the laxness now to building up reserves to pay income taxes in March.

"Plenty of people are out spending money on merchandise, though. Buying new clothes, furniture—anything they can get their hands on—spending money that can bring on inflation, the same money which would hold it down if it were put into War Bonds," he continued.

There are nearly 2,000 boys from Fayette County in the service now. They and the millions like them need the equipment War Bonds will buy them far more than pampered civilians need a new necktie or a new hat.

THIRD VICTORY SING IS SLATED NEXT SUNDAY

Song Program Outlined by Paul Fitzwater, Director

Next Sunday's Victory Sing—third in this season's series—will be sponsored by the Lions Club, Paul Fitzwater, director, said today. The sing will begin at 2:30 P. M. in the high school auditorium.

Special numbers scheduled now are the high school orchestra and the triple trio, directed by Fitzwater and Miss Mary Elizabeth Browning, vocal music supervisor at WHS. Fitzwater said others will be scheduled.

Mrs. Ralph Gage will be at the organ and Mrs. Paul Fitzwater will play piano accompaniment, posts they have filled at every sing this year.

To give devotees of the sings and others who are planning to attend Sunday an idea of what is in store for them, Fitzwater has announced the program of songs. In the first group are "America the Beautiful," "Brighten the Corner Where You Are," "Stand Up For Jesus" and "Battle Hymn of the Republic."

The second group includes "In the Good Old Summer Time," "Let the Rest of the World Go By," "Bicycle Built for Two," and "Shortnin' Bread."

A novelty number, "Three Fishermen," is in the third group, as well as "Old Black Joe," "Dear Evalina" and "Listen To the Mocking Bird."

The new popular song craze, "Mairzy Doats," headlines the last group. Other songs are "What Do You Do In the Infantry?" "Say a Prayer for the Boys Over There" and "When the Lights Go On Again All Over the World." As always, "The Star Spangled Banner" will end the program.

Grand winner will be crowned "Princess Snow White" at a dinner in the Netherland Plaza Hotel.

Winner of the contest gets a trip to Hollywood next summer with reasonable expenses for herself and her mother or guardian, Simons said. He indicated "a good many" inquiries about rules of the contest have already been made.
